

C. Nicholas Cuneo

Co-Founder and Executive Director, HEAL Refugee Health & Asylum Collaborative

C. Nicholas Cuneo is an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics and Medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and affiliate faculty with the Johns Hopkins Center for Public Health and Human Rights and Johns Hopkins Center for Humanitarian Health. He practices clinically as a hospitalist for adults and children at Johns Hopkins Hospital in addition to serving as a primary care physician for immigrant survivors of torture at Esperanza Center in Baltimore, MD.

He is Co-Founder and Executive Director of the HEAL Refugee Health & Asylum Collaborative, which is dedicated to expanding access to responsive health care and supportive services for immigrant survivors of torture and trauma seeking refuge in the U.S. Dr. Cuneo is a leader within the fields of refugee health and asylum medicine, serving on the Physicians for Human Rights Medical Expert Taskforce and as a co-lead of the Asylum Medicine Training Initiative, a national educational platform for health and human rights practitioners.

At Johns Hopkins, Dr. Cuneo serves as Co-Director of the Global and Refugee Health Leadership Track within the School of Medicine. His humanitarian work has been recognized nationally by organizations such as the American Academy of Pediatrics and Society for Hospital Medicine and was featured in a short documentary by the New England Journal of Medicine. He holds a BS from Duke University, an MD from Johns Hopkins University, and an MPH from Harvard University. He completed his residency in Internal Medicine and Pediatrics at the Harvard Combined Program at Brigham & Women's Hospital/Boston Children's Hospital, where he was Global Health Equity Chief Resident.