

Grace Caltrider

Chief Operating Officer, Ulman Foundation

Grace Caltrider serves as Chief Operating Officer of Ulman Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting adolescents and young adults impacted by cancer. In her role, Grace oversees organizational strategy, operations, finance, human resources, marketing, and program infrastructure, helping to ensure the Foundation can effectively deliver life-changing services to young adults and their families.

Throughout her career, Grace has built expertise in nonprofit leadership, organizational growth, strategic planning, team development, and change management. She is passionate about helping emerging leaders navigate complex challenges, build confidence in their decision-making, and develop the skills needed to lead with both accountability and empathy.

Outside of her professional role, Grace is a dedicated advocate for the young adult cancer community and believes deeply in the power of relationships, personal growth, and service. She enjoys endurance challenges like Ultramarathons, community building, and creating opportunities for others to grow both personally and professionally.
