Determined to SUCCEED

2016 Annual Report
JULY 1, 2015 - JUNE 30, 2016
MISSION:
Central Scholarship is devoted to helping individuals achieve a better life through higher education. We believe that education is a right, not a privilege and that scholarships are an investment, not an expense.

COVER STORY: FOUR EXTRAORDINARY LIVES
Our cover page features the photographs of four extraordinary people whose stories illustrate the mission of Central Scholarship. Lillie Straus, Cyndicy Yarborough, Nikki McNeil and Samuel Witten never met each other, but each one shares in an important slice of our mission. Lillie was the first Vice-Chairperson of Central Scholarship. Her appreciation for education continues today through scholarship awards from the Aaron and Lillie Straus Foundation. Samuel Witten and his late father Benjamin Witten, represent two generations of recipients whose educations were made possible through interest-free loans from Central Scholarship. Nikki and Cyndicy are two more recent student recipients whose lives have been brightened by academic and career training scholarships. Nikki is a community organizer, helping people living in Baltimore City. Cyndicy is a successful career training graduate with aspirations to continue her studies and advance her career. Together, these four unique people reflect our enduring mission to provide educational opportunities to people.

Dear Friends,

The bill passed!

We have exciting news, hot off the press, as we prepare to go to print with this year’s annual report. On April 18, 2017, Maryland Governor Larry Hogan signed into law a bill that restricts scholarship award displacement at four-year public colleges and universities. This is the first law of its kind in the nation! The new law protects students at Maryland’s public universities by regulating when and how institutional scholarships are adjusted when students receive private scholarships. This law is a cost-free solution that supports the efforts of industrious students and upholds the intent of private scholarship donors. This practice hurts students who devote their time to finding, applying and winning private scholarships, only to learn at the end of the process that they are no closer to being able to afford college. We are excited to be at the forefront of what we hope will be a nationwide movement to restrict this unfair practice.

In addition to our successful advocacy work, our scholarship program continues to expand. This year, we awarded $1 million in scholarships and interest-free loans. These awards were made to 292 students who went through a vigorous and competitive process. More than half of our awardees had family incomes of $50,000 or less; and first-generation students accounted for 33% of our recipients. In our vocational work, we awarded funds to 58 individuals, 90% of whom had family incomes of less than $20,000. Central Scholarship is keeping the education doors open for low- and modest-income families. Our recipients are smart, hardworking, talented, and focused on their futures. It is an honor to know them.

Of course, our work would not be possible without the generous support of scholarship funders, individual donors and vocational grantors. This year, we awarded 64 donor-named scholarship awards, including two newly-established funds. We are grateful to all of our donors who have created a legacy of supporting educational achievement. Thank you to our board, staff, volunteers, and most especially our students for their respect of the power of education.

Sincerely,

Jan Moylan Wagner
President
Lillie Meyer Straus:
Central Scholarship’s First Vice-Chairperson

Lillie Meyer was born on October 27, 1871 in St. Louis, Missouri. She married Baltimore–born Aaron Straus on June 9, 1889. They were married for 64 years. Together, they devoted their lives to philanthropic causes, shaping the Jewish community and Baltimore City. In 1924, she worked with Moses Rothschild to establish the Central Scholarship Bureau with the remaining funds from the closing of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum. CSB’s original mission was to support the educational needs of orphaned Jewish boys. Moses was the first President and Lillie was the first Vice-President. Lillie’s work became a lifetime passion that shaped the lives of generations of Baltimoreans in the Jewish community and beyond. In 1950, the CSB Board accepted its first fund for African American students when Dr. Jonas Friedenwald set up a fund in memory of his mother “to aid negro girls who wished to pursue studies” through higher education. Two years later in 1952, CSB provided assistance to the first African American students admitted to both the University Of Maryland School Of Medicine and the School of Pharmacy.

Although she was involved with numerous charities in Baltimore, Central Scholarship Bureau held a special place in Lillie’s heart. She is remembered for shaping Central Scholarship’s reputation as a compassionate organization. It has been said many times that if a student was denied a scholarship from CSB, Lillie would invite them to her apartment at the Belvedere, and write a personal check so that they could attend college.

“Aunt Lillie” is credited with launching more than 750 careers through her support of Central Scholarship. Her vision remains alive through a lifetime commitment from the Aaron Straus and Lillie Straus Foundation Scholarship.

In 2016, Central Scholarship received an extraordinary opportunity to address the barriers to career training and employment. David Rothschild, a Central Scholarship Board member, committed a major grant to address employment barriers that are often not addressed through traditional grant-funded sources. Research indicated that transportation was a major barrier to training and employment beyond the boundaries of Baltimore City. Lack of car ownership and inadequate public transportation limited the geographic reach of available jobs. Central Scholarship chose to work with the Jane Addams Resource Center (JARC), a local affiliate of a Chicago-based nonprofit, to support a group of Maryland residents pursuing training as welders or CNC (computer numeric controlled) machinists. JARC’s training focuses on high paying jobs starting at $17.00 per hour. Students who do not own a vehicle, upon completing training and securing an offer of employment, receive assistance from Central Scholarship to receive a car through Vehicles for Change (VFC), a local nonprofit organization. While the car award is pending, if the student was unable to commute to work via public transit, Central Scholarship provided the recipient route-controlled access to a company account with Uber. Recipients who do not meet VFC’s income criteria for car awards may receive awards of up to $2,500 toward the purchase of a car from a private seller. Recipients who have cars, but whose cars are not road-worthy, may receive awards of up to $2,500 to pay for necessary repairs, which will be completed by Full Circle Service Center, VFC’s repair shop.

Positive changes created in this first partnership include:

- 27 trainees; 8 women and 19 men received job training
- 21 trainees were approved to purchase cars
- 4 trainees received assistance with major car repairs
- 6 trainees received assistance to attend driving school and obtain a learner’s permit
- 13 trainees received assistance with financial barriers that would have prevented employment

Successful employment is measured in long-term impact. To evaluate this program, Central Scholarship is working with The Jacob France Institute at the University of Baltimore to create a longitudinal study of men and women supported through this special initiative.
Cyndicy Yarborough is a success story. Through trials and hard work, Cyndicy’s story reflects the positive impact of career training. She grew up in a large family and struggled with many day-to-day issues associated with deep poverty. At the age of 19, Cyndicy had her first child, followed by three more children. She decided to start being responsible for her own actions. That’s when the philosophy she learned at STRIVE Baltimore helped her on a new path. STRIVE is a job training program of the local nonprofit Center for Urban Families. She knew she was letting good opportunities pass repeatedly. She began to envision a new life for her family. She saw a flyer for the Jane Addams Resource Corporation (JARC) and pursued enrollment. She learned how to budget her money, repair her credit, and how to purchase a home. She also encouraged her to obtain a driver’s license. Now, Cyndicy has completed the CNC program at JARC providing her with a NIMS (National Institute for Metalworking Skills) Certification. She also obtained her driver’s license. With a car funded by Central Scholarship, Cyndicy is now earning $23 an hour with benefits. This is not the end of her journey. She plans to go back to school to study engineering, incorporating her CNC technical skills.
The Enduring Value of a College Education

A COLLEGE EDUCATION PAYS OFF. THE EARNING POWER OF COLLEGE GRADUATES HAS HISTORICALLY OUTPACED INCOMES FOR PEOPLE WITHOUT COLLEGE DEGREES. AS OF 2015, A COLLEGE GRADUATE EARNED AN AVERAGE OF 60% MORE THAN A PERSON WITH A HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA. ANNUAL INCOME INCREASES WITH ADDITIONAL DEGREES.

College Cash and Student Loan Pay-Down

We introduced our financial education series, College Cash®, in 2010, because we were deeply concerned about the rising costs of higher education coupled with increased student and parent borrowing. In 2016, College Cash® presentations were attended by nearly 600 Maryland residents. The series includes these presentations:

• Finding Money for College educates students and parents on the importance of making informed choices to manage college costs, and to boost the impact of federal, state, and private financial aid.

• Managing Student Loans is for students, parents, and graduates who have already borrowed, and outlines strategies, resources, and tips for managing student loan repayment.

• Parent’s Guide to Finding and Funding College is for parents only, empowering parents to define their role in the college choice and financial aid processes, and to understand financial aid fundamentals.

Central Scholarship Board Chair Ira J. Wagner and his wife Marcia contribute $30,000 to help one qualifying student, each year, pay down their student debt.

On April 18, 2017, Maryland Governor Larry Hogan signed into law a bill that restricts scholarship award displacement at four-year public colleges and universities. This is the first law of its kind in the nation.

Advocacy

In 2016, we continued our commitment to advocacy as a mission critical function.

As a statewide private scholarship provider, we had grown increasingly concerned with the practice of scholarship award displacement, defined by the National Scholarship Providers Association (NSPA) in their 2013 report, "Impact of Award Displacement on Students and their Families: Recommendations for Colleges, Universities, Policymakers, and Scholarship Providers", as “occurring when receipt of one form of financial aid, such as a private scholarship, leads to a reduction in other forms of financial aid.” This practice disproportionately hurts low-income students and jeopardizes the entire private scholarship industry.

Award displacement is a national practice which has drawn attention from industry leaders such as the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation; the Gates Millennium Scholars Program; and Dell Scholars, who found that over a three-year period, more than 60% of their scholarship recipients were victims of award displacement.

Leveraging the work of NSPA, we spoke with Delegate Dana Stein, who along with Senator Kathy Klausmeier, introduced a state bill in Annapolis in 2016 that would restrict award displacement at public institutions, making Maryland the first state in the nation to introduce such a bill. While the 2016 bill passed unanimously in the Senate, the House bill never passed. We succeeded in building awareness of award displacement, and our efforts received national media coverage and attention from the NSPA community.

P.S. As we go to press in spring 2017, we are thrilled to announce the passage of the 2017 Maryland state bill (HB 266 / SB 327) restricting the practice of award displacement at public universities in Maryland, sponsored by Delegate Dana Stein and Senator Ron Young!
Marquise Adeleye

“The patient always come first and with the growing Spanish speaking population, I feel that it is necessary for doctors to adapt to change.”

Marquise is a Baltimore City College graduate attending Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vermont. While at City College, Marquise was enrolled in the International Baccalaureate program that provides college-level courses to high school students. He succeeded in the rigorous program and credits it with helping him develop scheduling and prioritizing skills. Today, he is majoring in Spanish and pre-pre-med aspiring to become a multilingual doctor. Like many people of his generation, Marquise recognizes the multiculturalism in today’s world. Becoming a good doctor includes respect and familiarity with the backgrounds of patients. He understands that language barriers are a “pressing issue because it creates division between the doctor and patient”. He is determined to close the doctor-patient gap. Marquise is grateful for his scholarship because it “lifts the burden” of borrowing and positions him financially to attend medical school.

Katharine Boehner

“Nurses have a unique opportunity to help identify and provide outreach to the most stigmatized and isolated populations.”

Katharine is pursuing her Master’s degree from the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing after graduating from Hopkins with a B.A. in Public Health Studies. While a Hopkins undergraduate, Katharine received the Aitchison Public Service Fellowship in Government to study political science in Washington, D.C. She also studied at the University of Cape Town in South Africa. While in graduate school, she has maintained a 3.8 grade point average while committing time to leadership positions in campus based organizations that focus on healthcare access, reproductive health, diversity and inclusion. Katharine has honed her leadership skills as a founding member of the Forensic Nursing Interest Group. This work includes screening for child abuse, domestic violence, and elder abuse. She is an experienced campus organizer who uses her skills to help people during difficult times. Katharine has gained “incredible satisfaction” with her advocacy work and looks forward to a future as a leader in the nursing community.
Kathryn Cunningham

“I hope to make you proud of my achievements and promise to promote social justice, unconditional positive regard and healing for all of those who I come in contact in my education, career, and beyond.”

Kathryn Cunningham is a third year graduate student at Loyola University Maryland where she is pursuing a doctorate in psychology. This year, she is working with a group of adolescent males who have committed serious sexual offenses. Following graduation, Katherine is focused on a career in the juvenile justice system or in a residential treatment program for adolescents.

Kathryn’s interest in adolescent care is rooted in personal experiences that informed her of the importance of creating a network of care for young people. She is particularly interested in pursuing a career that serves people who do not have the financial resources to acquire mental healthcare. Her specific area of interest is working with adolescents with severe behavioral and emotional regulation difficulties, particularly Conduct Disorder, Oppositional Defiant Disorder, and individuals who have committed sexual offenses. Kathryn is the chair-elect of the Maryland Psychological Association of Graduate Students and plans to incorporate advocacy for more treatment options into her professional career.

Nikki McNeil

“Each and every day, the most I can be proud of is taking the next step, as long as it is the biggest and boldest step within my reach. A Baltimore pastor decided to take the next step and teach a college student about the history of his city, a homeless advocate took the next step to invite me to hand out coffee at downtown encampments, and victims of a Chilean fire took the next step to reach out to an American girl at their shelter. What these individuals gave to me through their wisdom and experiences, and what I gain through my education, I intend to invest fully at every step along my journey.”

Nikki is enrolled in the Master’s Program of Social Work / Counseling at the University of Maryland, Baltimore. She is pursuing a career as a bilingual specialist in social work or mental health.

Since 2015, Nikki has paired her ongoing education with firsthand work experience throughout Baltimore and in Chile. In her current internship at the Southeast Community Development Corporation, she is working as a community organizer in a community that is 70% Latino. In her time with Southeast CDC, Nikki has referred homebuyers to mortgage plans, assisted the neighborhood association with community events including clean-ups, planned a six-week health-themed after-school program for students and parents, and received funding for a community vegetable garden allowing Ecuadorian families to share their farming experience with other residents. Her ongoing course studies include gentrification, racism, organizational research, fundraising, and she is preparing for licensing exams. After graduation, Nikki hopes to work as a case manager for Spanish-speaking adults, eventually attaining a leadership role in support of Latin American immigrants.
As Central Scholarship approaches its 100th anniversary, we have collected many stories about the power of education and its impact upon a person's direction in life.

Samuel Witten and his father, the late Benjamin Witten, were both Central Scholarship recipients. Their story highlights a legacy of education and accomplishment.

Benjamin Witten was born in the United States in 1916 to Russian parents. His parents had modest jobs and raised Benjamin and his two siblings in East Baltimore. Ben was fortunate to come under the guidance of Dr. Louis L. Kaplan, the President of the Baltimore Hebrew College (later University). Dr. Kaplan was a major influence in Baltimore, guiding the educations of many young people, including Ben Witten, and helping them find opportunities they otherwise would not have.

In 1934, with a loan from Central Scholarship, Ben entered the Johns Hopkins University and earned his PhD in Organic Chemistry in 1940. He worked as an organic chemist for the U.S. Army at the Edgewood Arsenal (now Aberdeen Proving Ground) and became an expert in the science of chemical weapons. His expertise was eventually shared with Sinai Hospital and The Johns Hopkins Hospital, leading to the development of “red devil,” a chemotherapy agent for many types of cancer, which was a precursor to aspects of modern cancer treatment.

Young Sam Witten was 10 years old, and recalls being airlifted to Rome with the help of the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv.

Sam followed his father’s love for education and attended Baltimore Hebrew College and later the University of Maryland College Park. In 1976, Benjamin Witten died suddenly of a heart attack when Sam was a freshman in college, leaving his family in mourning. Sam was encouraged to apply for a loan from Central Scholarship to help fund his college education and proudly recalls paying back his loan in monthly installments over a seven-year period following his graduation from Maryland in 1979.

Sam received his law degree from Columbia University in New York in 1983 and began a distinguished career at the U.S. Department of State, eventually become State Department Deputy Legal Adviser and later Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State. As Deputy Legal Adviser, the top career legal position at the State Department, he supervised the Department’s legal work on East Asian and Pacific matters; trade, investment and intellectual property issues; human rights; environmental matters; international law enforcement cooperation; and Latin American matters. As Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, he managed the US Government’s worldwide refugee relief programs, including heading the State Department’s diplomacy on these issues at the UN and other international organizations.

Today, Sam is in a private international law firm based in Washington, D.C. He is active in his synagogue and community. Sam and his wife Joan Kleinman have three grown children. Sam commented: “I will always be grateful to Central Scholarship for being so helpful and encouraging to me. It is a truly great organization.”

SAM FOLLOWED HIS FATHER’S LOVE FOR EDUCATION AND ATTENDED BALTIMORE HEBREW COLLEGE AND LATER THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND COLLEGE PARK.

In 1966, with a U.S. Army fellowship in hand, Dr. Witten packed up his family and flew to Israel. In early June 1967, the family was airlifted out of Israel just before the start of The Seven-Day War.

Non-Discrimination Statement
Central Scholarship began in 1924 by providing vocational training scholarships for orphaned Jewish men. We’ve since grown and now consider applications for financial support for all post-secondary education including vocational, undergraduate, graduate, and professional degrees without regard to an applicant’s criminal history, ethnicity, gender, gender identity, race, religion, or sexual orientation. At our core, we are here to help the underserved, to give students an opportunity to pursue higher education.
